

Refined Sounds in a Noisy World

With Rüdiger Schoedel

A free music and musical instrument presentation and talk. Everyone is welcome and you won't be disappointed!

We are living in an increasingly noisy world. To protect ourselves we are constantly but unconsciously pulling up our "numbness bar". As a result, we become less receptive, less sensitive, less communicative, less lively, less creative, and more separated and withdrawn from the world around us.

Sounds are everywhere; but mostly they are artificial, not as a natural expression of creation, but as a by product of industrial production. The refined and subtle sounds of the Klangwerk instruments lead us to a new way of listening, of perception of sounds and music. They show how easy it can be to be musically creative (even if you consider yourself to be a non-musician), to communicate on a nonverbal level, open heartedly.

Rüdiger creates his own musical instruments for both non-musicians and musicians. He is a sound architect, music therapist, music teacher, performer, and master of improvisation in world music. One of the projects he has been working on in recent years is The Green School in Bali.
